The clairvoyant:

32-year-old Nadine Reuter is Swiss and lives in Zurich

Even as a child I knew I had a talent for connecting with the spiritual world. So in that sense, I never 'decided' to work in this field; instead, my work and my soul are one. All kinds of people come to me seeking answers. What is common among my clients is that they're all at a point in their life when they have questions. I work as a clairvoyant and use gypsy cards to help me concentrate and focus the stream of information I receive. The image on the card is simply a visual representation of what I'm feeling. To me, being able to tap into the information flow that surrounds us is something natural; there's nothing psychic about it! I see my work as coaching rather than therapy. It's not my aim to tell my clients what to do, but I try to give them the tools so that they can deal with their issues themselves. It's most satisfying to me when a client trusts in his or her own intuition and is able to reconnect with his or her 'self'. www.hellsehen.li
